Landfill permit approval expected

BY DENA BISNETTE

Unless unforeseen problems occur, Hancock County may have its permit for the new landfill in late March or April, but who is actually going to operate it remains an open question.

Engineer Lloyd Compton, representing Compton Engineering of Pascagoula, told the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Tuesday that the new landfill site, located on 16th section land in Standard, has more than one good spot to begin work.

However, the facility will initially be set up to use the existing access road for the Standard trash site, which accepts only leaves, branches and debris rather than the household garbage that will go to the adjacent landfill.

Because the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and other regulatory entities change their requirements for landfills about every five years, Compton feels it is no longer practical for counties to attempt to plan long-range landfill operation.

He told the board he instead recommends the use of contractors for landfill operation.

Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas said the board will consider the matter in one of its work sessions in the near future and, if they decide to use a contractor, the bids may be timed as closely as possible to the date the permit is granted.

Cuevas added that work at the old landfill, which closed Dec. 31 and was covered by an older, less stringent set of regulations, has indicated that the county may not have the proper equipment for landfill maintenance under the new rules.

According to Compton, soil borings on the new landfill site indicated the presence of the proper types of clay for a seal, also referred to as a liner.

Some additional borings in a few sections of the property may be required, but enough clay has been found to indicate to Compton that a permit will be granted.

In addition, there is something at the Standard site that might be a side benefit for the county. Not only is the clay there, but it is covered with eight to 20 feet of soil, 60 percent of which is a sandy type suitable for road projects, the engineer stated.

Cuevas said he was concerned because at a recent Mississippi Association of Supervisors conference, a speaker at a workshop on waste disposal had indicated that the 40 acres earmarked as the new landfill may not be enough land to be cost effective.

The 40 acres initially planned for use will probably be adequate, Compton said, "because we can go deeper than usual."

"We can go 10 to 15 feet down," the engineer stated.

He said more of the overburden, the layer of soil on top, would have to be removed, but that no additional fill material from off the site is expected to be needed.

Under current regulations, household garbage must be buried at least eight feet deep into specific types of clay. The clay forms a seal around the decaying garbage and keeps the toxic substances formed from leaching into water supplies and nearby drainage structures.

One of the problems that had been reported with the old landfill was lack of consistency in the depth of the clay.

So far the county has received no objections regarding the closing-and-covering procedures at the old landfill in Catahoula or the plans for the new one in Standard.

If any objections to the permit are received, the board will have to conduct a public hearing with 30 days after the permit is granted.

The county is currently using dumpsters at several sites to collect household garbage under a contract with a waste disposal firm, Browning-Ferris

Cigar store Indian now missing person

BY DENA BISNETTE

A wooden Indian that has been standing sentry since May in front of Yesterday's Treasures, a Main Street antique shop, has been stolen.

Dorothy Dartez, owner of the shop as well as the Indian, said the carved wooden statue disappeared sometime Sunday night. It had been chained in place and the chain had been cut.

She described the Indian, which she had brought back from New Mexico last year, as being so heavy "it took two grown men to lift it." However, it is only four feet high.

Like traditional cigar store Indians, her statue holds cigars in its hand. The Indian is depicted as a chief in full war bonnet and brightly colored Apache-style clothing with a mostly red shirt.

Dartez is offering a reward, with the amount depending on the condition of the Indian upon its return.

She said the Indian had become something of a symbol to her and other merchants in the Main Street area because what is now Main Street was once an Indian trail the Choctaw tribe used they went fishing at night.

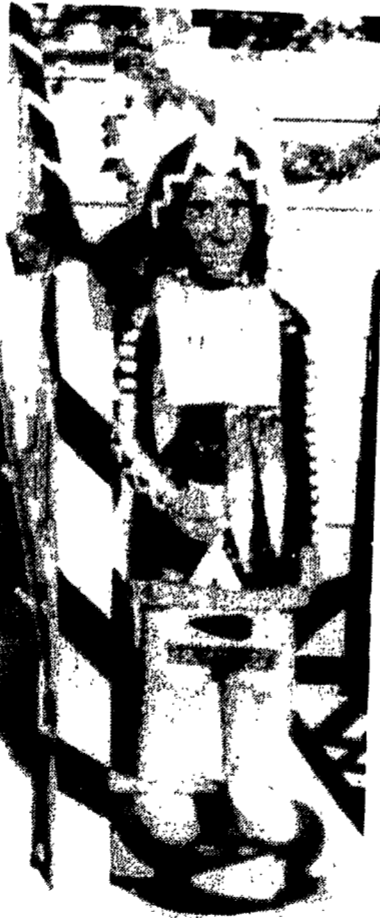

"I wanted a gimmick to put in front of the shop and it just mushroomed," Dartez said, explaining that she had been wanting an Indian for a long time before visiting New Mexico to obtain this one, which had been hand-carved by local tribesmen.

She had even renamed the wooden statue with a Choctaw name, Nitaketchi, which means Great Farmer.

"He'd been in front of my shop since May 1988 and nobody bothered him. The kids loved him and people slowed down to look at him," Dartez said.

She added that since it is Mardi Gras season, she would not be surprised if her Indian turned up as an ornament in a truck parade somewhere.

Bay St. Louis Police Department is investigating the case and anyone with information about the theft may call the station at 467-9221, or may call Dartez at 467-1897.

ON PATROL

HIGH-SPEED CHASE

The theft of a Waveland police officer's pickup truck early Saturday morning led to an ironic sequence of events that sounded more like a movie script than a typical night in Hancock County and resulted in more than 10 charges against the perpetrators.

Arrested were Herman S. Wooten, 23, of Gulfport, who was driving the vehicle, which happened to belong to Waveland Police Officer Rene Norman and had been stolen from the parking lot of a business on US-49 in Gulfport.

Also arrested was James Busby, 22, of Saucier, who was a passenger in the pick-up. In Hancock County, Wooten has been charged with one count of reckless driving; four counts, speeding; three counts, running stop signs; one count, driving with a suspended license and one count, DUI, refusing to be tested.

He and Busby both were taken to Hancock County Jail, each held on a $2,400 bond. They were held for Harrison County, where they are charged with grand theft auto.

Answering a call about a suspicious vehicle, which was described as two white men in a white pickup, in the predominately black neighborhood at St. Frances and Washington Streets, Bay St. Louis Policeman Richard Hannah became involved in a high-speed chase through the streets of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and at times exceeded 100 miles per hour.

At about 2 a.m., Hannah attempted to stop the truck on US-90; near Washington Street, but the driver fled west. With Hannah in pursuit, the truck jumped the median and headed east to Beach Boulevard, where it turned south toward Waveland.

At St. Charles Street, the truck turned inland and went to Central Avenue, then turned toward Waveland. On Central, the chase continued to Waveland Avenue, where it turned north to US-90, where traveling west, it jumped the median and headed east, then jumped the median again and headed west.

The pursuit then led to Jake's Lounge, west of Waveland, where Busby was apprehended at the scene. Wooten, however, eluded the officers by fleeing into woods behind the night spot.

Wooten was arrested later by officers from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department after he was located by Norman and another off-duty Waveland police officer, Brett Ladner.

Ladner said Norman had gotten a ride to the Bay St. Louis Police Department. When he went to pick Norman up to give him a ride home, they decided to check the Brass Anchor Lounge.

"It was the only place that was still open," Ladner said, explaining that the two officers had received a description of the driver from Bay St. Louis officers.

The two officers, in plain clothes, saw Wooten sitting by the bar.

"The guy fit the description and he had mud on his pants," Ladner said.

Ladner called the sheriff's department and asked that someone be sent to investigate.

He said the man at the bar, later identified as Wooten, appeared "real nervous" and kept watching the door. When a young woman dressed in a jogging suit walked in, Ladner said Wooten started to leave and the two officers stopped him.

"I just quietly explained that I was a police officer and asked him for his ID. He handed me an A.T.&T. card. I told him the sheriff's department was on its way and to go sit back down and wait."

The investigation later revealed that Wooten had called the woman for a ride home.

"What's the chances of going in a place and finding a guy right away who matched the description?" Ladner commented.

Assisting in the arrest were deputies Albert Biehl, Clay Sick, Mike Siebert and Don Watson.

DEFENDING KILLERS: ETHICS IN AMERICA

Wendy Wright, a stock trader, and John Barnes, an advertising executive, are engaged. She breaks it off. In a seeming fit of rage and jealousy, he stabs her to death.

Variants of this sad, violent scenario make headlines almost daily. In "To Defend a Killer," the next episode of "Ethics in America" at 10 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 7 on Mississippi ETV, Harvard Law School Professor Charles Ogletree Jr. uses it to provoke answers to the question: "Does our legal system force lawyers to step outside the norms of ethical conduct, or is such single-minded zealotry the only way a defendant's rights can be protected?"

Ogletree complicates the case as he prods a panel of noted attorneys, judges, reporters and theologians to confront the question.

The crux of the debate is the definition and implications of the so-called "attorney-client" privilege, which holds that all communications between the defendant and attorney are sacrosanct. Often professional and personal, ethical spheres collide in the law.

But, other quandaries arise: How do you reconcile the killer's right to a fair trial with society's demand for justice? Can circumstances exist where there is a killing and a killer, but no crime?

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Since we have been experiencing late Spring temperatures for the past several weeks, many of our early blooming plants and shrubs are already flowering and budding.

We sure hope we will not receive any freezing weather because it sure will destroy many of our plants.

At home we have had several large lilies in full bloom for the past four weeks and several with buds in various stages.

Across the street from home there is a beautiful Japanese Magnolia in full bloom and I have also seen others about town.

My brother Raymond has an apple tree in bloom and I have been told by several folks they have Azaleas ready to bloom any day.

In viewing weather reports in recent days we have been noticing the below normal temperatures in Alaska with many reports saying the cold spell was headed our way.

One thing is for sure, we can talk about the weather and how it affects us, yet we can do nothing about it.

One wooden Indian stolen from a Bay St. Louis business is one of the latest matters being investigated.

Dorothy Darte, owner of Yesterday's Treasures on Main Street reports at least two people must have removed a four-foot high wooden Indian from in front of her business.

The wooden Indian had been in front of the shop for several months and is reported to have been very heavy. It is hard to realize what someone would be able to do with such an item after removing.

If you see a wooden Indian about town you may want to give the Bay Police Department a call.

Animal control is one of the concerns of the Humane Society and has been addressed with a spay/neuter program.

Many of you may not realize it, but if this practice hadn't been going on since the Humane Society became a reality in Hancock County, we would have many more unwanted dogs and cats in our area.

The spay/neuter program is an effective animal control as many thousands of animals have been sterilized in Hancock County over the years.

Programs such as spay/neuter does cost money and recent demands for assistance have been so great that the Humane Society runs out of their allocation each month with only a few days.

A contribution to the Humane Society's spay/neuter program would be really appreciated and could be put to good use.

Persons interested can make a contribution to: Hancock County Humane Society, P.O. Box 2273, Bay St. Louis, MS. 39520. Contributions are tax deductible.

Don't forget Diamondhead's Land and Sea parades on Saturday.

The Land Parade begins at noon at the Country Club and finishes at the Yacht Club where royalty from both parades will meet.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson is this year's Grand Marshall and we are sure he will do a fine job leading the parade.

We hope to see you at the parade Saturday.

The Krewe of Kids parade is scheduled Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis. It is a really fun time for youngsters who participate.

Sunday will be the St. Paul's Mardi Gras parade in Pass Christian and we know many folks from this area will be along its parade route too.

Mardi Gras Day in Bay St. Louis will highlight the annual Krewe of Real People parade which begins at 1 p.m.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Humane Society extends plea for spay-neuter donations

Dear Editor,

Early last summer when I was working as a volunteer in the Waveland Shelter, I saw a car pull up and watched disbelievingly as the lady driving it parked and began unloading black puppies.

One attendant went out to help her and it quickly became obvious that the other attendant had to jump into action. There were boxes of puppies in the trunk, on the seats, on the floor, everywhere.

Our heads kept saying No, No! while our hearts were sinking.

About 30 puppies were taken into an already puppy-filled shelter. Each puppy there was a living, feeling desperate piece of life, and just about each one of them would have that life ended in a very short time.

But at that time, those that were not too petrified or too sick wagged their tails and looked badly in need of human attention.

Today I received a brutality complaint from a man in Shoreline Park: one of his neighbors is practicing animal control by drowning young puppies in the bayou behind his house.

Since the founding of the Humane Society in 1973, one of the main goals of the society has been to curb the increasing animal population explosion through concerted efforts of our spay/neuter program.

We have assisted many, many thousands of animal owners in the sterilization of their pets. At this time our budget allows the spending of $400 per month at the maximum amount of $20 to each person requesting assistance.

The demand is so great that almost the entire $400 is allocated on the first day of the month. The calls requesting assistance continue throughout the month, every month.

We are making a special plea to everyone in the county to help us in this cause. Animal control is everyone's business and prevention is the only humane way to do it. Please take part in our 'Sponsor A Spay' program and send us a donation earmarked for this project. Do it now before the spring puppy explosion happens. We can prevent it with your help.

Make your tax deductible check payable to the Hancock County Humane Society, Inc., P.O. Box 2273, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. We also accept Visa and Mastercard. Every dollar helps!

Bill proposes stiff penalties for nursing home abuse, theft

Last year, one of state Rep. Ken Stribling's constituents called him and said she was quite upset over the physical abuse and theft of property of an aged relative in a nursing home. Was there a state law that dealt with the problem?

The young Jackson lawmaker found there wasn't. But he also learned that Atty. Gen. Mike Moore, through his Medicaid Fraud Control Unit, was aware that there were some ugly cases of abuse of nursing home residents around the state.

Moore was already working on a proposed bill to make it a felony for nursing home employees to abuse or financially exploit the elderly in long-term health care facilities.

So Stribling, a first-term member in the Legislature, teamed up with the aggressive 36-year-old AG to push for enactment at the 1989 legislative session of a measure that provides both stiff criminal and civil penalties for abuse or financial exploitation—usually theft of money or property—of nursing home residents.

Stribling's measure, House Bill 289, embraces much of a national model piece of legislation backed by the National Association of Medicaid Fraud Control Units.

Significantly, it gives the attorney general as well as the local district attorney the power to step in and investigate and prosecute cases of nursing home abuse.

Plus, the state AG may institute civil suits against individuals or nursing homes which fail to exercise "reasonable care" in the hiring of personnel when such failure results in abuse.

Criminal penalties for nursing home physical abuse may range from up to five years for simple abuse up to 30 years for aggravated abuse and a $5,000 fine. Civil damages could range from $5,000 to $20,000.

The measure, which last week cleared the House Public Health and Welfare Committee and was expected to also get clearance by a second committee, the House Judiciary B committee, requires reporting of cases of abuse by employees or health care professionals. Anyone knowingly failing to report such cases would be subject to a $500 fine or a six-month jail term.

"A key provision is a 'whistle-blower' protection for employees who report abuse, providing assurance that they shall not be terminated or demoted or otherwise punished for making a good faith compliance with the statute," Stribling said.

Moore has said that most nursing homes in Mississippi seem to be doing a 'pretty good job' in preventing physical

Expanding Medicaid

Many rural hospitals in Mississippi are in serious financial trouble, but there is something we can do about it.

That is one reason why I have proposed the largest increase in Medicaid funding in Mississippi history—$120 million in state and federal money.

This money will cover 30,000 more Mississippians who currently can't pay for their health care. It also will improve benefits.

It's not a cure-all for our rural hospitals, but it certainly will help.

How bad is the problem?

An estimated 45 rural hospitals in our state are experiencing serious financial difficulties. It is shocking that this many of our rural hospitals are struggling, particularly when so many Mississippians rely on them.

The problem is that too many Mississippians just can't pay for health care.

It will take many years before Mississippi can provide for all of its needy citizens. But the most effective thing we can do right now is to beef up Medicaid—that is the front line of defense in providing health care to the poor.

Because the federal government gives Mississippi $4 for every $1 we put in, it is a good deal for the people of our state.

Not only will expanding Medicaid help rural hospitals and the citizens who use them, it also will help the state's economy.

Every $1 of state money spent on Medicaid generates $6.62 in state personal income and 81 cents in state revenue.

That means the proposed increase in state Medicaid funds will produce an $88.6 million increase in personal income for Mississippians and an estimated $19.4 million in state revenue.

Part of this proposal calls for redirecting to Medicaid the $7 million a year that currently goes to the Mississippi's three charity hospitals in Meridian, Laurel and Vicksburg. Mississippi will automatically receive $28 million in health care funds from the federal government if that $7 million is put into Medicaid.

By doing this, we also will be ending a double standard of care, where people with money go to one system of health care and poor people go to another.

We need to work toward the day when rich and poor, black and white, and young and old are all treated according to a single standard of care. We should not maintain separate-but-unequal systems of health care.

Earlier this month I spoke to the National Advisory Committee on Rural Health Care. I outlined my Medicaid expansion proposal and, in the words of Dr. Kevin Fickenscher, director of the Center for Rural Health at the University of North Dakota, "It's a good idea that makes a lot of sense."

It also has been endorsed by groups including the Mississippi Medical Association and the Mississippi Hospital Association.

Let's put our tax dollars where it will do the most good for the most people, and expand Medicaid.

Hometown News from the Capitol City

By Mississippi Reporting Service

The Mississippi House narrowly approved Gov. Ray Mabus' state government reorganization plan last week. The measure, which required a three-fifths vote, passed with only a two vote margin.

Rep. J. P. Compretta was among the slim 73-46 majority. The bill required a three-fifths vote, or 71 yes votes, because it involves spending and saving tax dollars.

The reorganization plan, estimated to save $9 million and cost 146 state jobs, survived an attempt to send it back for reconsideration after it passed. The measure proceeds to the Senate, where a weaker reorganization bill passed in mid-January.

The House bill would create six umbrella state departments under the direction of gubernatorial appointees, rather than boards of directors. The Senate plan establishes five departments and saves only $3 million.

Mabus called the measure a vote for progress and a sign that significant government reorganization can be accomplished this year. Legislative supporters of the plan say some lawmakers' opposition to the bill was based on personal dislike of Mabus and fear that reorganization will give the governor too much power.

On Wednesday, the House OK'd a bill that would allow people to register to vote by mailing a letter to their local circuit clerk. The next day, under heavy lobbying from circuit clerks, the House brought up the bill again and killed it.

An amendment Thursday changed the voter registration bill into a revenue measure. That meant it required a three-fifths vote, instead of a simple majority, as it had earlier. The second time around, the vote was 63-56—eight votes shy of the 71 needed.

The House also passed a bill that could lower consumers' utility bills. In a trial run on the Gulf Coast, Mississippi Power Company officials say a variable rate plan lowered customers' rates by five percent.

A proposal to close that state's three charity hospitals, in Meridian, Laurel and Vicksburg, was revived in the Senate. The bill would transfer money currently going to the hospitals into the state Medicaid program for use by poor patients throughout the state.

A similar charity hospital measure passed a House Committee this week and now goes to the full House for consideration. Opponents of the closings say the hospitals serve some poor people who are not eligible for Medicaid.

House Bill 734. This bill allowed people to mail in their voter registration forms to their local circuit clerks. It passed 67 to 53 with two absent. Compretta, yes.

House Bill 734. The day after it passed, HB 734 was called up again and amended to include a provision that allowed counties to borrow money to purchase computer equipment. That transformed it into a revenue bill, which requires a three-fifths vote for passage, or 71 yes votes. The second time around, the measure was defeated, with 63 representatives voting yes and 56 voting no. Compretta, yes.

House Bill 659. The House version of Gov. Ray Mabus' government reorganization plan would save an estimated $9 million along with creating six major state departments. The new agencies would be led by gubernatorial appointees rather than governing boards. It passed 73 to 46, with three absent. There were 71 yes votes required for passage. Compretta, yes.

House Bill 659. Amendment 10. This amendment to the government reorganization bill severed the State Employment Service and the Employment Security Commission from the reorganization plan, leaving the two agencies intact. It passed 64 to 52 with six absent. Compretta, yes.

House Bill 885. This bill will allow the state Public Service Commission to develop variable-rate plans for public utilities, eliminating costs hearings. When used on a trial basis on the Gulf Coast, electric power rates for consumers were lowered five percent. It passed 83-32, with one voting present and four representatives absent. Compretta, yes.

Smith named NAACP president

The Hancock County Chapter of the NAACP has elected Calvin R. Smith as its new president, 1989-1991 term. Smith, 42, is a native of Hancock County. He received a bachelor's degree in social work from Bowie State College in Maryland and has a master's degree in Title VII Law from Antioch College, Washington, D.C.

Smith is a member of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, 1971; recipient of The Arthur S. Flemming Federal Employee Award, 1981; and recipient of the Distinguished Service Award, 1986, presented by the Federal Business Association, New Orleans, La.

For three years, 1985-1988, he served as executive director of the Greater New Orleans Federal Executive Board. In his capacity as executive director he spearheaded the development of the Metropolitan Equal Opportunity Advising Council, served as federal liaison to the New Orleans Combined Federal Campaign, and orchestrated the federal fund raising drive that collected in excess of $900,000.

In the Bay St. Louis area, he has been president of several local organizations and has membership in many others. He is currently vice chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Smith says that it is his civic duty to volunteer for various boards and committees and hopes that others within Hancock County will also make contributions to the communities from which they come.

He has dedicated numerous volunteer hours while serving as Little League baseball coach and manager, commissioner of Babe Ruth girls softball, AAU basketball coach in Bay St. Louis and head coach, girls basketball at Coast Episcopal High School in Pass Christian where he led them to two conference titles in three years.

As president of the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), Smith plans to continue developing the youth of our community by giving direction and guidance to them.

His emphasis will be placed on education, vocational training, and other skills that will ensure success for youth today.

Exposure, said Smith, is vitally important to success. He said, "If you haven't seen success, you can't begin to dream about success. In essence today's youth within our communities must thirst for exposure, they must seek the golden ring, seize the opportunity to excel and not be afraid to step outside of that quaint, cozy environment and experience different things in life. Dr. Martin Luther King had a dream, and he pursued it until his death. Through his death the NAACP plans to continue living that dream through all of the youth in our community, regardless of their race, creed or color."

"I see this appointment as a challenge; I accept it most graciously and pledge to give my all for the betterment of Hancock County and all mankind," Smith concluded.

Smith is employed by the U.S. Customs Service in New Orleans, La. He is married to Herta Smith and has two teenagers, Katherine and Brandon Smith.

Wild horses, burros coming to Mississippi

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) is bringing surplus horses and burros from federal land in the West to Canton to make the Adopt-A-Horse Program accessible to people in the area.

Approximately 170 horses and burros from the West will be available for adoption to people who agree to give the animals good homes. The adoption fee is $125 for the horses and $75 for the burros. The horses will consist primarily of yearling and two-year old mares, studs and geldings. These animals must be removed from the public lands to decrease herd population levels. The government then asks the general public to provide them places to live. The temporary adoption center is scheduled for February 23 through 25 at Mid-Mississippi Livestock Yard in Canton.

Mississippi has been the site of five previous wild horse and burro adoptions, all held in Canton. Approximately 1,300 wild horses and burros have been adopted in Mississippi since the Adopt-A-Horse Program was started.

Those who obtain application forms and apply in advance will be assured a better selection of animals, but 'walk-up' applications will also be acceptable as long as animals are available.

Application forms and information are available from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, Suite 326, 300 Woodrow Wilson Ave., Jackson, Ms. 39213, or call 965-4199.

abuse. But recently he learned of a case of a 94-year-old woman in a south Mississippi facility having to have her legs amputated when gangrene set in from neglected bedsores.

"The thrust of our bill is that there are many good nursing homes in the state, but there is a small handful of them who are not," Stribling points out, adding: "We are not indicting nursing homes, we are saying that if there is abuse we have to have a way to deal with it."

The law would require a person knowingly, willfully, purposely or recklessly attempt to cause abuse in order to be found guilty. "This does not mean something like accidentally giving an elderly person five pills instead of two," Stribling said. The Mississippi Health Care Association, the major lobby group for nursing homes, has said it supports the 'spirit' of the measure, but it has objected to the fact that the bill does not include hospitals.

Stribling contends the measure is designed to cover long-term personal care which is not the purpose of hospitals. "This is just an attempt to kill the bill," Stribling said.

"The nursing home lobby is a powerful lobby," the Jackson lawmaker declared. "They're out here making it sound like we're trying to send a Gestapo after these innocent nursing homes."

He predicted that the measure will pass the House, but faces an uncertain future in the Senate. "I believe the only thing that could kill it is politics," he said.

KING AKUA KAI XV CURTIS STOUT AND QUEEN GLADYS MCCOOK

Diamondhead Krewe of Kamehameha presents annual Bal Masque

The Krewe of Kamehameha presented its 15th annual Mardi Gras ball on Saturday evening, Jan. 21 at the Diamondhead Country Club, paying tribute to their reigning monarchs, King Akua Kai XV Curtis Stout and Queen Gladys McCook.

The royal procession was led by Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen Lou Lamendola and Consort to the Queen Bill Malcolm.

The royal couple promenaded as their subjects gave a standing ovation.

Blair James and Matthew Ladner served as train bearers. With Commodore Tom Ballard presiding over the ceremony, the royal couple was toasted and graciously offered toasts in return.

King Akua Kai XV delivered his Royal Proclamation, and their Majesties acknowledged attending family and visiting friends.

Following dinner, the monarchs were entertained by the Ship of Fools Players, who, under the direction of Beth Boudreaux and Peaches Barger, with costumes by Josette, presented the tableau 'Diamondhead Boaters Remember Nursery Rhymes and Fairy Tales.' As Mother Goose read those favorite tales, the players brought them to life.

As usual, the royal decorations of carnival were superb, thanks to the dedication of the many volunteers led by Laura Almerico, Ann Neff and Nina Cotton. Each table was highlighted with miniature Mardi Gras floats and accented with lights.

59th St. Paul's Parade rolls in Pass Sunday

The St. Paul Carnival Association's Annual Mardi Gras Parade, touted as the one of the most popular parades on the Coast, rolls through the streets of Pass Christian Sunday.

Mark Jenkins, and Queen Christiana, Pat Scarborough.

The parade, the association's 59th, begins at 1 p.m. The route will be: Davis Avenue from Second Street to Beach; Beach to Henderson Avenue; North on Henderson to St. Louis, east to Church Street; then along Second to the St. Paul's Gym. Reigning over the 75-float parade will be King Christian, Dave Zeitfuss is serving as grand duke and Linda Emmel will be grand duchess.

Weather conditions for the parade have been excellent for many years. "It always clears up for the parade. That should tell you something," said a spokesman for St. Paul's.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Those puffy golden casseroles called 'strata' were, I think, the invention of ingenious and thrifty cooks back in the 1930's, when money was scarce—as today—yet the taste buds had to be appeased as well as the hungry stomach!

Strata, of course, means 'layers'—and that's just what you do for this—you layer leftover bread with eggs and milk and cheese and whatever vegetables or bits of meat or such are on hand, with the result a delicious and filling casserole.

The smoothness of the custard contrasts with the zestiness of the other ingredients. And, there's an extra bonus: stratas may be assembled far ahead of time, even the day before, to make it easy on the hurried, and often harried cook!

So, why not make this up ahead of Mardi Gras, and have it ready and waiting in the refrigerator after the parades and madness of Carnival, for a quick supper for tired merry-makers?

The strata is somewhat like the soufflé. In fact, at my house I call it my 'sneaky soufflé'—and, if the family doesn't hurry to the table and the concoction collapses a bit, just smile and call it your 'Fallen Angel Soufflé'—that's what I do.

One of my favorites, which is somewhat like a spinach quiche, is:

SPINACH-CHEESE STRATA

Several slices day-old bread, preferably French

1 large onion, chopped

2 Tblsp butter or margarine

1 pkg. frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry

Dashes of pepper, salt, hot pepper sauce

3 eggs

1½ cups shredded Swiss cheese

Line the bottom of a buttered baking dish (6-cup or so size) with half the slices. Sauté the onion in the butter, add the spinach and seasonings, stirring together.

Spread the mixture over the bread slices in the casserole, sprinkle a cup of the cheese over, and top with the remaining bread. Beat the eggs in a bowl, stir in the milk, then pour this mixture over. Sprinkle the remaining half cup of cheese atop, cover the dish and refrigerate at least a few hours or overnight.

When you're ready for the strata, bake it, uncovered, in a 350 to 375 degree oven for 45 minutes, or until it's all puffed up and golden brown. If it starts browning too fast, cover with foil.

Let stand for 10 minutes before you serve it. (Six servings).

You may wish to vary this dish with these other combinations: diced ham and shredded Cheddar cheese instead of the Swiss cheese; or sausage-spinach-and-Swiss. Or, you may wish to use shrimp or crabmeat—just use your imagination and whatever's on hand and about to go to waste—for that's the cardinal sin in a good and thrifty cook's kitchen!

Use onions while supply is plentiful, prices low

In this time of seemingly abundant shortages, news of this year's onion supply should come as a welcome change. The U.S. onion supply has taken a complete turnabout from the time, less than two years ago, when it was labeled "the greatest shortage in 50 years." You'll want to use onions as many ways as possible while they're plentiful and lower in price.

Dry onions, those that have been grown to maturity, then dried, fall into three general categories: Globe, Granex-Grano and Creole.

Globe onions are predominantly round, usually have strong flavor and are available into the late summer, fall and winter. The skin is usually yellow but may be white or red.

They are used primarily for cooking. The Spanish, a Globe type, is large, round and has either a yellow or white skin. Available in autumn and winter, the Spanish onion is mild in flavor and therefore good in salads and for raw slices.

Granex and Grano type onions may be round to top shaped with the upper half usually flattened. They have yellow or white skins and their mild flavor makes them ideal for slicing and eating raw. Granex and Grano come from warmer growing areas and are available during the spring and summer.

The Creole onion is flat and small to medium in size. It may be red, white or yellow skinned and has a very strong flavor. The Creole is an autumn onion and not so abundant commercially as the other varieties.

Green or Spring onions are usually a special variety of onion grown for early harvesting but they may be ordinary onions harvested before reaching maturity. They have green tops, medium size necks and should be white or at least two to three inches from the root.

Shallots and Leeks are not onions but are sometimes confused with them. Shallots have straight pencil-like stems with only slight bulb development. The bulb contains cloves, like those of garlic, instead of the concentric rings, typical of onions. Leeks are larger than onions. Both Shallots and Leeks are milder than green onions.

When selecting dry onions look for bright, shiny and solid onions with dry crackly skins. Avoid onions showing signs of decay such as moisture or mold around the neck or base. They should be symmetrically shaped with thin necks. Misshapen onions with double bulbs or thick necks are undesirable only because of waste in use.

If they have been graded, onions marked U.S. No. 1 are of top quality. They have good shape and are free from decay or defects such as sprouting or necks with tough, woody centers.

You cannot judge onions for pungency by color, but shape and size are sometimes helpful. In general, you may expect flat or round onions that are three inches or larger in diameter to be sweet and mild.

You can keep onions quite easily but storage requirements vary with the type purchased.

Review your food safety habits

Many of us are already re-evaluating our New Year's resolutions. Trying to eat only one day a week or jog 15 miles a day with no previous training was a bit unrealistic. Why not consider forgetting those unrealistic resolutions and set new ones? Adding food safety to your list is an excellent idea.

Start with the freezer. Is it frozen-over or jam-packed with food? If so it will not hold frozen meat and poultry at safe freezer temperatures—0 degrees F or below. If the freezer is frozen-over, you may need to defrost it.

Examine frozen items carefully; discard foods that have changed in appearance or texture. Put usable foods in an ice chest filled with ice. When returning food to the freezer, date the packages and divide them into long and short storage categories so you can use them within the recommended storage time.

Next, look at the refrigerator. If you have leftover meat and poultry dishes, use them as soon as possible. These foods can be stored in the refrigerator from three to four days.

Fresh meat or poultry should be used within one to three days. Also, check the "sell-by" or "use-by" date on mayonnaise, salad dressing or other foods that need refrigeration. Throw away outdated, moldy and obviously spoiled foods.

To get rid of the odor that may linger from spoiled food, wash the refrigerator with baking soda and water, and put a box of baking soda in it to absorb odors.

To safely store food in the freshly cleaned refrigerator:

* Make sure the refrigerator is set at 40 degrees F or below to prevent most bacterial growth; use a refrigerator thermometer to check the temperature.

* Don't overload the refrigerator. Cold air must be able to circulate to keep foods at optimal temperatures.

* Tightly cover all foods and use them within the recommended storage time.

Cabinets can be a hideaway for food safety pitfalls. What could be more devastating than finding out while preparing a special meal that the canned ham you put in the cabinet two months ago should have been refrigerated?

Before storing foods in the cabinet, read the labels. Since today's packaging for some shelf-stable and refrigerated products are so similar, label reading is necessary to ensure such foods are stored properly. If you find a product on the shelf that should have been refrigerated, throw it out.

Counter tops, sinks and utensils need extra care. To keep bacteria from spreading from raw to cooked foods, wash the counter top, sink and utensils after they have been used to prepare raw meat and poultry.

Carefully scrub and clean wooden cutting boards since bacteria can harbor in the grooves left by knives. A hard non-porous cutting board is better for preventing the spread of bacteria. Also, wash kitchen linen often and throw away old sponges.

Kitchen appliances should work properly. Use an oven thermometer to check the temperature in your conventional oven. If it isn't working properly, have it serviced immediately.

With a well-serviced oven and by using a meat thermometer, you can make sure meat and poultry cook to proper internal temperatures. Poultry is thoroughly cooked at 180 to 185 degrees F; beef and other meats should reach 160 degrees F.

Check the microwave oven, too. Stale food particles left in the microwave oven can interfere with cooking time. Food cooks in the microwave oven by absorbing the microwaves. The molecules of the food begin to vibrate, and this friction creates heat within the food. Stale food can absorb some of the microwaves, and cooking time could be slower than usual.

To clean the microwave oven, place a mixture of lemon juice and water inside the oven and turn it on. The steam will condense on the oven surface and make food much easier to remove. The lemon juice will absorb odors.

A kitchen that can pass a food safety test is extremely important for you and your family's health and well being. New Year may have passed but it is never too late to make a food safety resolution.

Industries. BFI then picks up the garbage and takes it to the firm's landfill, which is in Harrison County.

In preparation for doing so, the board had to increase the landfill budget.

Cuevas has stated in previous board meetings that the new landfill will be a short-term solution to the county's waste disposal problems, which intensified last year when the Catahoula landfill began to run out of room for additional garbage.

The board has looked at some long-term solutions but has not yet made a decision. However, the board president has indicated that some type of incineration system is likely to be used, and that a landfill will still be needed because the ash produced by the incinerator will have to be buried.

The board meets again at 9 a.m. Monday.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1989-1B

Stone County takes first SSC invitational

The Stone County Tomcats withstood a fierce Pascagoula comeback in the second half to win the first annual St. Stanislaus College Invitational Basketball Tournament, 49-46.

The Tomcats of Coach Rickey Stone held a very comfortable 19-point lead at halftime, holding a 33-14 advantage. But the pesky, pressing defense of the Panthers limited Stone to only eight points in the third and eight points in the fourth quarter while Pascagoula scored 32 points.

Pascagoula actually took the lead for the first time in the contest, 47-46, with :23 left to play, but Stone's Greg Breland hit two clutch free throws with :10 seconds to play.

The victory raised Stone's record to 20-6, and gave them a state ranking. The Tomcats have a 7-4 record against Class 5A teams. Stone is in Class 3A.

In the consolation game, Gulf Breeze, Fla., defeated St. Stanislaus 63-56, led by Pat Ramm with 22 points. Shannon Garrett led the Rocks with 18 points, followed by Greg Schruoff with 16 points.

Gulf Breeze led at halftime, but played tenacious defense in the second half to keep a comfortable lead against the Rocks. Gulf Breeze is now 13-06 for the season, while SSC dropped to 16-7 with its two losses to Pascagoula and Gulf Breeze in the tournament.

In other tournament action, Pascagoula defeated Bay High 76-44 in the first round action, with Freddie Necaise leading the Tigers by 10 points. Stone blasted Picayune 73-56 in their opening game, led by Dantae Galloway's 15 points.

In second round action, Stone defeated Gulf Breeze 64-41 and Pascagoula defeated SSC to set up the final contest between Stone and Pascagoula. In their four meetings thus far this season, Pascagoula has won the first two, with Stone capturing the last two wins.

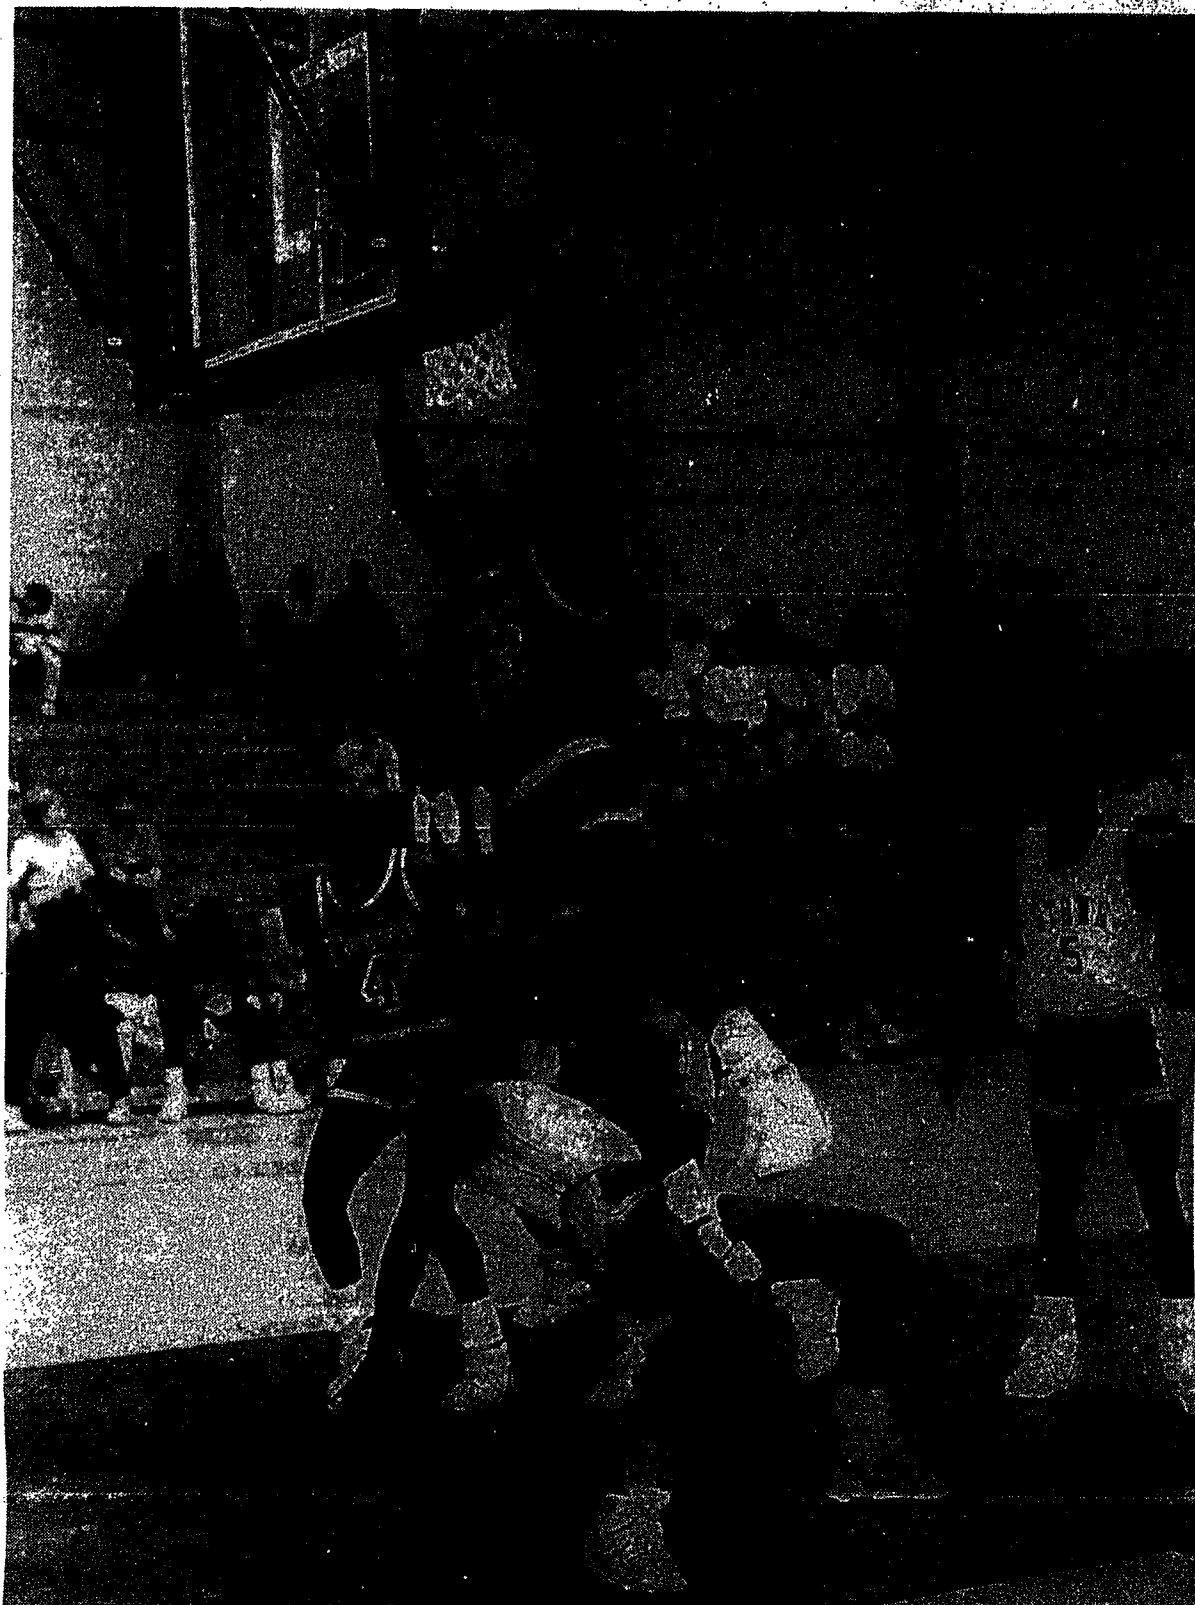

Named to the All-Tournament team were Stone's Dantae Galloway (MVP), Jo Jo Brown and Grag Breland; Pascagoula's Noel Bilbo and Anthony Clark; Gulf Breeze's Pat Ramm and Tom Baker; Bay High's Cedric Walker; SSC's Greg Schruoff; and Picayune's Derrick Little.

"Our first SSC Invitational was quite a success," said Athletic Director Jerry Spell. "The championship game gave basketball fans a great game to watch. The quality of play and of some future college players was outstanding. We're looking forward to having this tournament for years to come."

Coach Chuck Genin added, "I feel like the tournament was a success. We had a fine turnout all three evenings. You couldn't have asked for six better teams to kick off our first invitational. We felt like Stone County and Pascagoula made a great championship game."

"The tournament ran very smooth for us, and I would like to thank all who helped us throughout the tournament. Without them it would not have been possible."

HANGING IN THERE—Attempting a reverse lay-up during St. Stanislaus' First Annual Invitational Basketball Tournament, Pascagoula's Thomas Jones holds onto the backboard to avoid a charging penalty against Stone County's Jo Jo Brown. Looking on are tourney MVP Dantae Galloway (#5) of Stone and Calvin Williams (#4) of Pascagoula. Stone won the tournament by defeating Pascagoula 49-46 in the finals. (SSC photo)

Eleven PRC football players signed by universities

Four-year colleges and universities looking for football talent didn't leave much behind for others when they got through examining what Pearl River Community College had to offer this year.

Mike Nelson, who led the Wildcats to a 6-3-1 record, said 11 players from his team have signed, or are expected to sign with four-year schools.

While the Cats had 13 players sign last year, this year's total is proportionally larger.

"It's real high," he said, pointing out the club had 34 sophomores, while this season there were only 14 on the roster. He said he had expected that only four to five players would be signed.

Nolan Booker, a 5-9, 170-pound wide receiver from Covington, signed with Langston University in Oklahoma. Lewis Gholar, a 6-1, 200-pound wingback from Prentiss, signed with Savannah State in Georgia. Roland Johnson, a 5-11, 214-pound running back from Hattiesburg, signed with Troy State. Anthony Jurich, a 5-9, 200-pound running back from Picayune, signed with Evangel College in Springfield, Mo.

Charles Kindred, a 5-10, 170-pound defensive back from Brooklyn, signed with Southern Methodist University. Greg Necaise, a 6-1, 225-pound line-backer from Bay St. Louis signed with Northwestern Louisiana.

Chris Bates, a 6-2, 187-pound defensive back from Poplarville, Anthony Bowie, a 6-2, 230-pound defensive end from Monroe, La., and David Johnson, a 5-10, 185-pound defensive back from Picayune have all signed with Oregon Tech.

Brad Greer, a 5-11, 220-pound linebacker from Poplarville, may sign with Millsaps College, and William Earl Harper, 6-0, 223-pound full-back from Bassfield, may sign with Langston.

SSC 7th, 8th grade end season

The St. Stanislaus seventh and eighth grade basketball team defeated Pearl River Central 56-38 to finish their season with an impressive 11-4 overall record.

The Rockachaws were led by Derek Inkol with 23 points and Jeff Bishop with 10 points. SSC took a commanding 19-7 first quarter lead, and continued to build on their lead as everyone on Coach Rory Rafferty's squad had a chance to play.

"I feel our kids played well the entire season. They learned a lot of fundamentals and learned how important it is to play together as a team. If they continue to work hard on improving their game, they will develop into outstanding athletes who will help the Rockachaws win for many years to come," said Coach Rafferty.

Included in the Rockachaw wins were victories over d'Iberville, Long Beach, Bay High, Gulfview, Pearl River and St. Paul's of Covington, La.

There's only one way to come out ahead of the pack.

Waveland students try new kind of fire drill

BY DENA BISNETTE
Waveland Elementary School students have had the chance to try a different kind of fire drill.

In a school fire drill, students learn evacuation procedures, what escape routes and exits are available and where each class should meet once they leave the building.

While no matter what time of the school day an emergency may occur, students have the assistance of a teacher, a fire evacuation in a home is different. A child may be faced with the problem of getting out on his own.

DuPont Delisle Plant employees have been touring area schools during January with the DuPont Safety House, which provides a realistic fire drill complete with smoke, cut-off escape routes and alarm sounds.

The safety house is one of two built at DuPont plants and then provided for one month each year to any plant that wants use it. The one that visited Waveland was manned by a crew of volunteers from the Delisle Plant.

They included Matt Dubuisson, Joseph Piernas, Mike Saucier, Dan Seliga, Robert Leonard, Larry Gagnon and Rhonda Labat.

The member of the group have various jobs, many of which are not directly related to fire safety. Bay St. Louis resident Labat, for example, works as a medical records secretary, but while the safety house was at Waveland, her jobs included becoming a fire department dispatcher.

Accompanying the house was Pluggie, a remote-control robot that looks like a fire hydrant. In the school library, Dubuisson carried on a conversation with Pluggie, for whom Piernas supplied the voice.

Pluggie introduced students to some of the basics of fire evacuations and discussed with them what they already knew. A little girl who had been a participant in a previous fire safety program, for example, told Pluggie what a person should do if his clothes catch fire, then demonstrated at his request.

The robot initiated the sounds of a smoke alarm as he rolled around in front of the students, telling them how to get out of a building when the door to their room is hot.

The students got a chance to try out all of their instructions in the safety house, which has a miniature kitchen and bedroom. The house is equipped with smoke alarms.

The children were instructed by Labat and Seliga on where to go after evacuation and the drill began.

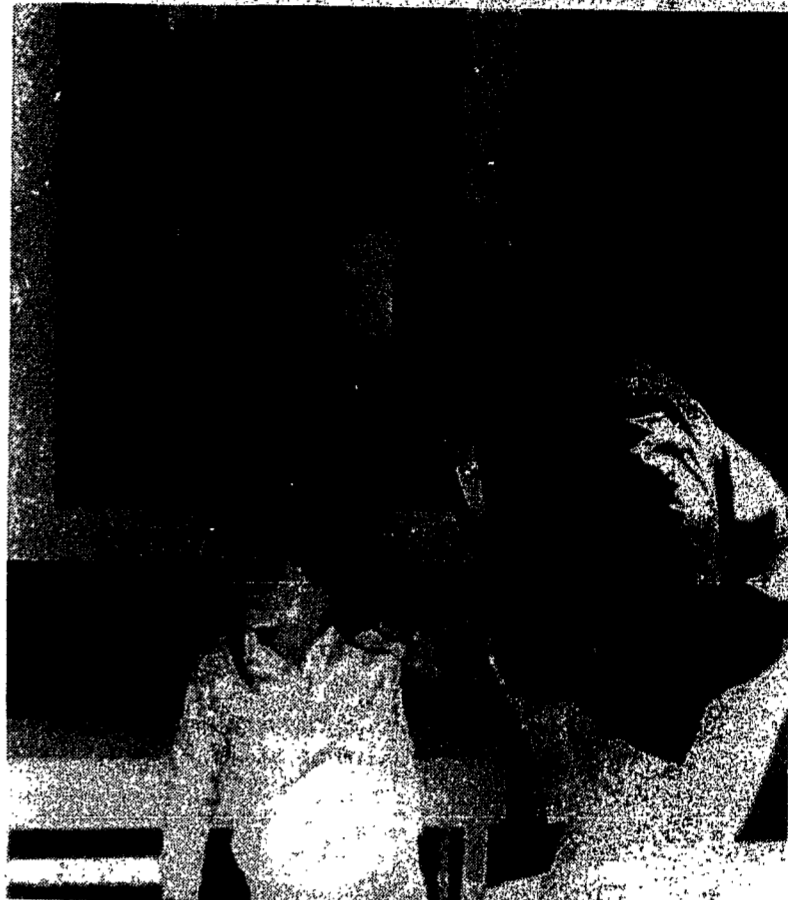

Smoke began to seep out from some sections of the house, alarms went off and children checked the doors. The doors heat up, which in a real fire situation would indicate an unsafe route because there would be flames on the other side.

Other Delisle Plant employees waiting on the outside helped children out of the windows.

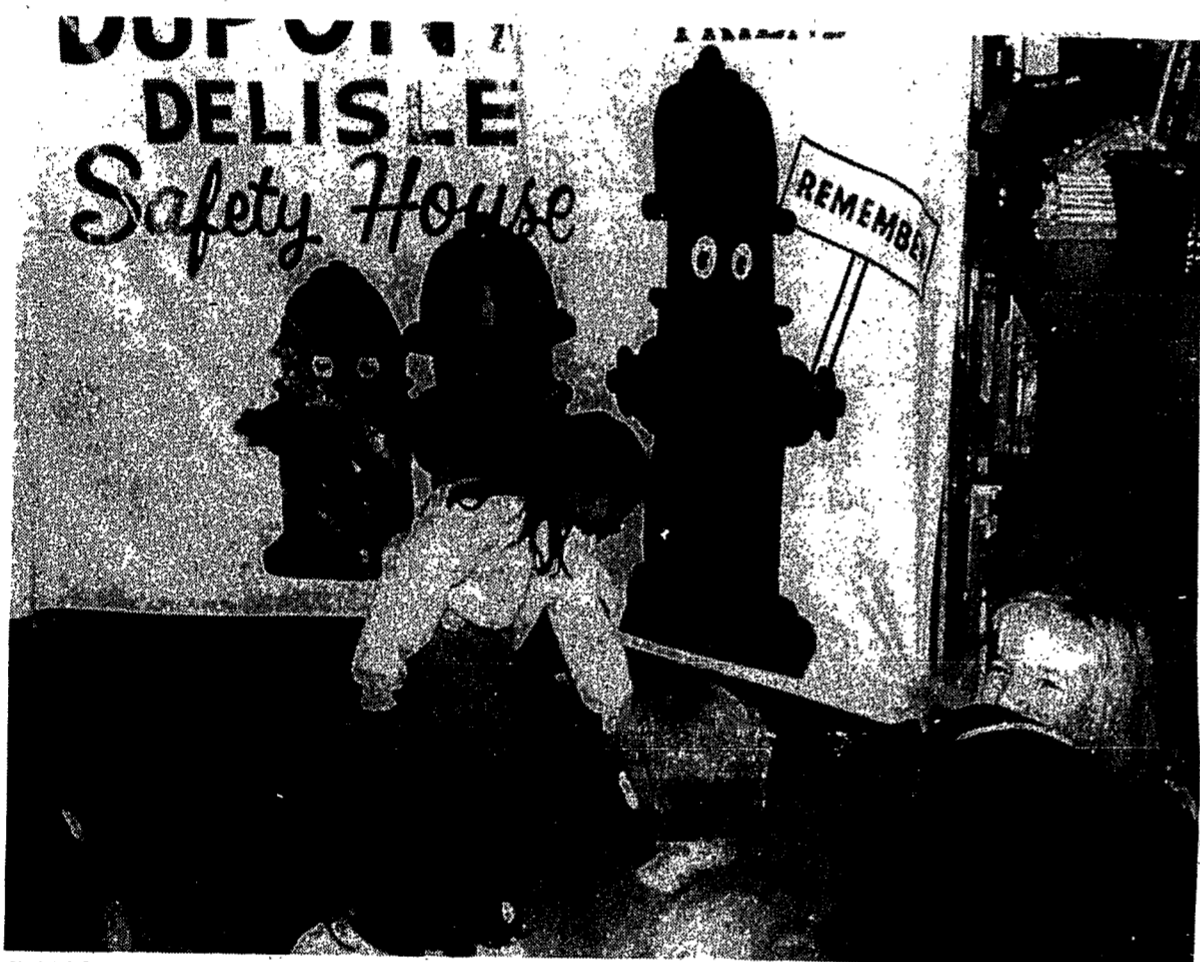

The last child out during each drill was instructed to call the 911 emergency number from a telephone provided at the meeting place, which was at one end of the school building.

The child reached a phone in the safety house. The DuPont employee who answered functioned as a dispatcher, getting the child to give his name, the location of the "fire" and instructing him not to return to the house.

The DuPont volunteers said their goal is to allow every student, by the time he is in third grade, to participate in the safety house program. In addition, the Delisle Plant has started a program in which smoke alarms are donated to local schools, with the schools in charge of distribution.

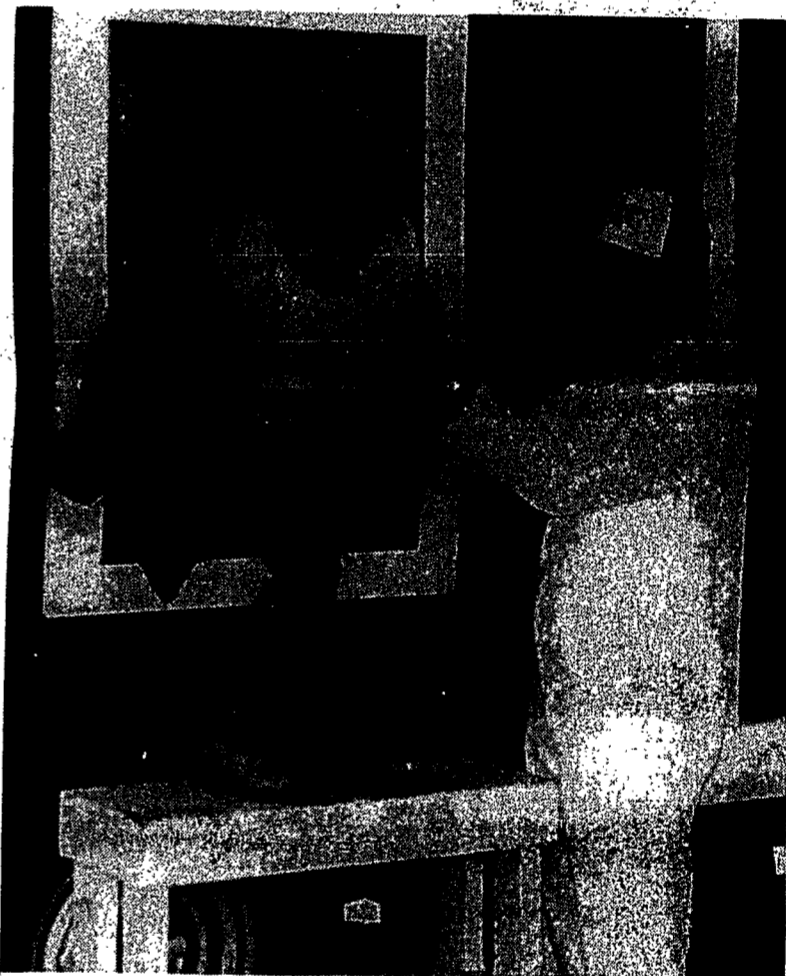

MEET OVER THERE—Students participating in DuPont Safety House fire drill are instructed to meet at a specific place after evacuation. DuPont Delisle Plant employees who volunteered to bring the house to Waveland Elementary School included Dan Seliga, Robert Leonard, Larry Gagnon and Rhonda Labat. DEMONSTRATING FOR HER CLASSMATES, a third grade student at Waveland Elementary School shows how to drop and roll when clothing is on fire. Commenting on her actions from behind her is Pluggie, a remote-controlled robot used as a teaching aid during introductions to DuPont's safety house. DuPont Delisle Plant employees working with Pluggie included Matt Dubuisson, Joseph Piernas and Mike Saucier. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Tax counseling offered low income, senior citizens

A free income tax counseling service provided by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Tax-Aide Program is available on Tuesdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Annunciation Parish Center, Kiln/Delisle Road, Kiln. Volunteers trained by the Internal Revenue Service will fill out various forms and explain benefits to senior citizens. 1987 income tax copies are requested along with current tax materials.

Birds that are frequent visitors to our area

By LYDIA SCHULTZ

This is really Winter. I find it very hard to remember though, when I walk outside and see plants that normally bloom in April and May in full color now. I see trees budding as though Spring were here. It feels like Spring. It is hard for me not to go out and grab a shovel and start my yearly work that is done only in Spring.

Unfortunately, the plants and I are not the only ones confused. Birds and animals seem to be also. As I finished my morning walk I heard the Mockingbirds and Cardinals singing their songs at attract mates. It even sounded like Spring. The last week I am constantly saying to myself, "It is still January."

Okay. So we have established that it is unseasonably warm. It may or may not turn cold yet. (For my plants, I hope not. For the fleas and other insects, a good freeze could go a long way to curtailing their activities).

Regardless of whether it's cold or warm, the first of February is a great time to get housing ready for our feathered friends.

Reber Layton of Jackson wrote a book several years ago. It is called 30 Birds that Build in Houses. Of the 30 birds he mentions, 15 live in our area and will build in a house. With that in mind, one could have a lot of fun providing nesting sites.

The first one that I hear about, even in December, is the Purple Martin, commonly called Bee Martin by 'oldtimers.' We have had reports of the scouts already arriving, and I am sure that I saw one yesterday overhead. So, get the compartments cleaned out and dust them with some Rotenone. They will probably be taking up residency in a couple weeks if you have established colonies.

Another common and welcome visitor is the Carolina Wren. You can attempt to attract it to a house, but more than likely it will take up space in that fern on your porch, or the light globe on your porch fan, or the can of nails in your utility shed, or the pocket of the pants hanging on your clothes line.

If anyone has a cute 'Tale of a Wren,' I'd love to have it written down. They can delight you for hours.

Carolina Chickadees and Tufted Titmouses are frequent house dwellers in our area. Nothing pleases me as much as these two busy birds.

One of my customers had a Titmouse get in her hair two years in a row, trying to gather material (hair) for its nest. This was previously documented in books, so I wasn't shocked. I was delighted, however, to know someone that this had happened to. She said each time her giggles eventually scared the brazen bird away.

Woodpeckers that will take to nest boxes are the Northern Flicker, Red-headed Woodpecker, and the tiniest Downy Woodpecker. They are not easy to attract but I've heard enough success stories to encourage you to go out of your way.

Then there's the Eastern Bluebird. This beautiful bird has made a dramatic improvement in its numbers since we were scared to death with its decline in the late 1960s.

I have had nesting birds reported in Bay St. Louis last year. It was very exciting to see the bird expanding its territory.

A Bluebird box placed near a pond, ravine, or river could attract a Prothonotary Warbler. Say what? Yes. That's the name of one of our loveliest birds. It is what my dear friend, Judy Toups, calls "the first sign of Spring." This bird, approximately 5 1/4 inches, is the prettiest buttercup yellow with a green back. When you see one for the first time, you can't believe your eyes. And if you've never seen one, I recommend that you spend an hour or so looking. Give me a call, I'll tell you where to go.

Barn Owls will build in huge nest boxes provided for them. I don't believe you can put a box up and attract one, but I do believe that if one is in your area, you could help an endangered bird by giving it a place to care for its young.

Screech Owls are fun to have around. They will take over woodpecker holes and other cavities. I had a wonderful pair in a box that I'd put up. Each morning we would look at each other, those bright yellow eyes watching me from just a few feet away. Of course, the mockingbirds were most unhappy with the owls' presence, but I wasn't.

Never forget the Great Crested Flycatcher, a wonderfully active and vocal bird that will brighten any day and yard. They will go in martin houses, woodpecker cavities and gourds. For those of you who have the right habitat, go for the Woodducks. I know people who have had these ducks nesting for years. I can't think of a better way to spend your time.

Almost forgot the Brown-headed Nuthatch. That cute teeny bird that goes down a tree head first and loves cavities we provide.

I hope I've not neglected any of the birds for our area. If you want to know more specifics, give me a call at 467-BIRD. I will give you heights and sizes.

Do not procrastinate. Even if it were cool, the birds in our area do their nest-site selections in February, some even earlier. So get busy and get going. Think Spring.

Thought for this time: We all need to do our part to make our environment a good place to raise young.

LUXURY STEAMBOAT 'J. M. WHITE'

Steamboat photographic exhibit at Waveland Library

'Steamboating in Style,' a photographic exhibit reflecting the glory days of steamboating is now open at the Waveland Library on Coleman Avenue and will hang through Feb. 21.

The exhibit, which incorporates 40 photographs, depicts life on the steamboats from cargo carrying to elegant socializing. In 1811 the steamboat made its debut in Mississippi. Transporting cargo, particularly cotton, was the main business of boats on the river. However, during the off-season steamboats would lure passengers aboard with unsurpassed luxury.

Many travelers from both sides of the Mason Dixon line enjoyed excursions on the Mississippi River aboard steamboats such as the grand J. M. White.

These floating palaces continued to gain popularity until the outbreak of the Civil War.

After the war and up until the early 1900's, steamboats again reigned over the river enjoying the new golden age.

The photographs in this exhibit are from the Norman Collection owned by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Gandy of Natchez. The public is invited to view 'Steamboating in Style,' an exhibit which was produced by the staff of the State Historical Museum in Jackson. The museum is a division of the Department of Archives and History.

For more information, call the Waveland Public Library, 467-9240.

Hancock students rewarded for leisure-time reading

One-hundred and eighty-four students at Hancock North Central Elementary School were awarded gold and silver medals for their reading performance in the World Book Partners in Excellence Reading Program. The students read a total of 1899 books in a seven-week period.

Pledges were collected for each book read by the participants and will go toward the purchase of a set of The World

Book Encyclopedia and Childcraft. For each $2 collected by the students, World Book contributed $1.

DONATE YOUR CHANGE TO FIGHT HUNGER.

The statistics about hunger in America are shocking. More and more children and elderly people don't have enough to eat. But you can help make a change for the better. WINN-DIXIE and The Salvation Army have put together a simple, effective program called "Even It Up." When you buy groceries, just ask the your cashier to "even up" your grocery total to the next dollar. The funds collected will go to The Salvation Army to provide fresh food items for needy families.

EVEN IT UP!

GIVE YOUR CHANGE TO FEED THE HUNGRY.
